A charming and characterful two-bedroom mid-terraced period cottage, believed to date back to circa 1870, quietly tucked away in the heart of the ever-popular village of Bromham. The property enjoys a semi-rural feel while remaining within easy walking distance of the village primary school, local pub and well-regarded butcher, making it an ideal blend of convenience and peace.

The accommodation is both welcoming and full of period charm. The main sitting room is a particularly attractive space, featuring a striking inglenook fireplace with wood-burning stove and a light, airy feel. From here, the room opens into a south-facing conservatory to the front of the cottage, providing a delightful additional reception space, ideal for relaxing during the warmer months. To the opposite side of the entrance, the dining room is currently used as a study and features its own fireplace, with a pleasant outlook over the front garden.

To the rear of the cottage, the kitchen has a traditional, cottage-style feel with a range of units, plumbing for white goods and a window overlooking the rear. Just off the kitchen is a ground floor shower room, installed in 2020. A door leads out to the rear, where there is shared access and a useful brick-built outbuilding with shelving and plumbing for appliances.

Upstairs, the principal bedroom is an exceptionally generous, dual-aspect double with built-in storage and lovely outlook. There is a further single bedroom and a separate upstairs W/C with wash basin.

Outside, the beautifully established south-facing front garden is a real feature, laid mainly to lawn and complemented by an abundance of shrubs, flower beds, small trees, a garden path and a patio area ideal for outdoor seating. To the front of the property there is driveway parking for two vehicles.

Overall, a delightful period cottage in lovely condition, offering character, privacy and a sought-after village setting. Early viewing is highly recommended.
