The well presented accommodation, which is arranged over 3 storeys, retains original features which sit well with 21st century refinements including a recently fitted bespoke quality kitchen with appliances, upgrade of the oil fired central heating with feature cast iron radiators to the reception rooms and under floor heating in the kitchen and utility room. Many of the rooms have feature, Farrow & Ball, painted walls. It is our understanding that the property can be used either as a guest house [as it was in the past] or principal residence but planning conditions particularly state for the 'avoidance of doubt the dwelling will not be occupied as a second home or for use as a unit of holiday letting accommodation'.
