The Property

The Cornish Chapel was built from local rubble stone with granite dressings, the chapel features pointed-arched windows, a steeply pitched roof and a gabled entrance porch, reflecting its Gothic architectural style. The interior conversions a beautifully refurbished, interior design-led conversion that seamlessly blends character features with contemporary finishes, creating a truly unique and stylish home. A carefully considered lighting scheme runs throughout, incorporating recessed downlights, wall-mounted feature lighting and a striking chandelier within the main living space. High-quality LVT flooring flows seamlessly across both floors, complemented by traditional column radiators that add warmth and character.

The impressive open-plan living space forms the heart of the home, defined by an impressive vaulted ceiling with original exposed joists, creating a sense of space and volume. Dual-aspect chapel windows flood the room with natural light, while a 12kW MCZ pellet stove provides a central focal point, efficiently heating the entire space and adding a cosy yet contemporary feel. The bespoke kitchen has been thoughtfully designed, taking inspiration from the chapel's original windows, and features elegant brushed gold sanitary ware, sleek thin-profile composite work surfaces and a peninsula unit ideal for both preparation and casual dining. Integrated appliances include a waist-height electric oven with combination oven above, four-ring electric hob, fridge/freezer and dishwasher, along with an under-mounted sink for a clean, modern finish.

A small but very much useable double bedroom is located on the ground floor, offering storage space with the potential for fitted wardrobes. The adjacent shower room is finished to a high specification, comprising a wall-mounted vanity unit with freestanding wash basin, low-level WC with dual flush and brushed gold fittings to mirror the kitchen, with pale blue tiling adding a soft but modern touch. A practical utility area provides additional work surface with space for a washer/dryer below, along with access to the LPG bottle fired boiler, while motion sensor lighting enhances everyday convenience.

A bespoke oak staircase rises from the living space to a mezzanine-level principal bedroom, creating a striking architectural feature and maintaining the open, airy feel of the chapel. A stylish borrowed light window, inspired by the original chapel design, further enhances the sense of space and light. The en-suite shower room mirrors the finish of the ground floor and is accessed via sliding door, completing this thoughtfully designed and beautifully executed home.
