Situated within the heart of Alyth, this substantial traditional stone-built property offers generous accommodation across two levels, combining character, flexible living space, and excellent potential for modernisation. With spacious rooms, period charm, and a large enclosed garden, this impressive home is ideal for growing families or buyers seeking a property with scope to personalise.

The ground floor features a welcoming entrance hallway leading to a spacious living room with attractive bay window and fireplace, creating a bright and comfortable main reception area. A separate sitting room provides additional living space, ideal for family use, home working, or entertaining. The large kitchen and dining room offers extensive storage, workspace, and room for informal dining, while a practical utility room, bathroom, rear entrance porch, and useful storage areas add everyday convenience. Upstairs, the property offers four generously proportioned bedrooms, all providing excellent flexibility for family living, guests, or hobbies. A family bathroom serves the upper accommodation, while additional attic storage enhances practicality. Externally, the property benefits from a private enclosed garden with mature planting and greenhouse, offering a peaceful outdoor retreat. Positioned within walking distance of local amenities, this characterful home presents an exciting opportunity in a sought-after Perthshire town.
