Guide Price £1,950,000

A highly desirable 178 acre livestock farm situated in a convenient location on the Pembrokeshire/Carmarthenshire border having considerable residential appeal including a character four bedroom principal residence and three bedroom annex. Various agricultural buildings to include modern sheds and traditionally constructed buildings that have conversion potential subject to planning. The land extends to some 178 acres of productive and well established pasture.

The property is to be offered for sale as a whole or in lots.

Situation

Lampeter Velfrey lies in the east Pembrokeshire countryside within an area of highly regarded early, productive land, suitable for grazing, cropping or arable purposes, being inherently fertile.

The village has a strong sense of community and within the village lies the 13th century Grade II listed church of St Peter. Lampeter Velfrey lies within easy reach of the A40 which links to the M4, and is some 3 miles or so from the small towns of Narberth and Whitland. Between them they offer a good range of local services and facilities that cater for most everyday requirements including doctors' surgeries, primary schools. In addition, there is a comprehensive school in Whitland and a train station in both towns, etc. Further afield lie the market towns of Haverfordwest and Carmarthen which provide a greater range of amenities including supermarkets, shopping centres, hospitals etc. Also within easy reach is the superb scenery of the renowned Pembrokeshire coastline being approximately 6 miles to the nearest beach.

Lower End Town is situated within a thriving community in rural Pembrokeshire having tremendous links to local livestock markets in both Whitland and Crymych.

Description

Lower End Town is a livestock farm that extends to 178 acres or thereabouts and includes a principal residence of traditional construction along with a secondary dwelling, being suitable for multi generational living or as a principal residence and letting cottage. The original dwelling dates back to at least the 17th century and was fully renovated in the mid-1990s. Furthermore, there is a range of traditional outbuildings that we feel may have the potential for conversion, subject to the necessary consents being obtained. Together with a range of modern agricultural buildings to include cattle shed, multi-purpose shed and a pole barn, the property is described more particularly as follows (approx. dimensions only):

The Outbuildings

The holding benefits from a range of outbuildings suitable for a variety of applications including traditional range and modern agricultural buildings.

Traditional Range

A range of buildings consisting of stone-built barns under slate roofs being former cowsheds and are now used for general storage. We feel that these buildings have the potential for conversion subject of course to the necessary planning consent being obtained.

Cattle Shed 120' x 40' (36.58m x 12.19m)

Being open fronted with 5' cantilever roof covering a concreted feed passage, feed barriers to the front and boarded to three sides having a stone floor. The shed also benefits from an independent electrical supply.

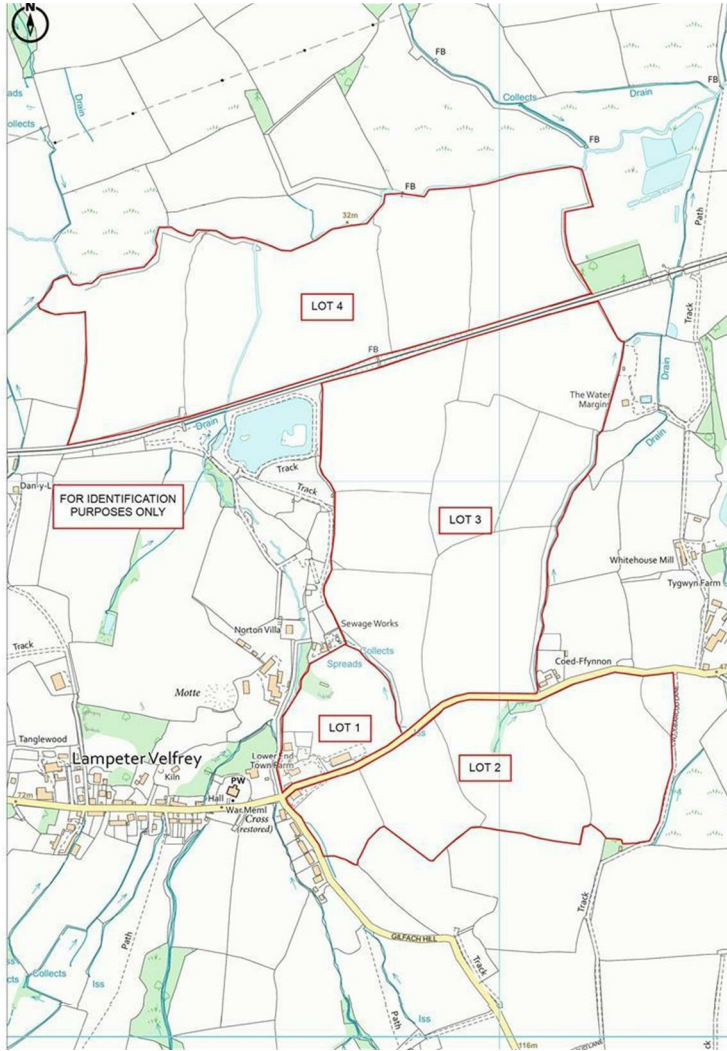

Multipurpose Shed 60' x 40' (18.29m x 12.19m)

Having cement fibre sheet roof and being open to all sides with partial boarding to two elevations providing shelter. It is a shed that is versatile and may be used for a range of applications.

Pole Barn 45' x 45' (13.72m x 13.72m)

A versatile and well-ventilated shed having box profile roof.

The Land

A plan is attached for identification purposes only. The land extends to 178 acres or thereabouts of mainly level or gently sloping land of which we would estimate some 175 acres are clean and productive land with the remainder being improvable grazing and yard area.

The land is currently a traditional permanent pasture ley consisting of a variety of species including clover and traditional grass species providing a diverse and versatile ley suitable for both grazing and cropping.

The land benefits from exceptionally grown hedgerows which provides shelter for livestock along with an abundance of mature, deciduous trees to enhance the visual aesthetic of the holding.

The land is conveniently located to the farmstead and is predominantly gently sloping with the parcels being divided into well sized, easily worked blocks that are readily accessible.

The farm is well fenced being stock-proof with these fences being in good condition. Water is available in the fields and is provided by a combination of water troughs and the streams and river that cross the land. The land benefits from roadside access to many fields with others being easily reached internally with a large amount of inter-connecting gateways.

The land is well suited for grazing, cropping and arable applications being a productive block that experiences a mild climate.

Straw & Fodder

If required there may be the option to purchase the straw and fodder that is stored on the farm to aid with the incoming farming practice.

General Remarks

Lower End Town is highly recommended to purchasers looking for a versatile agricultural unit that occupies a rural setting in Pembrokeshire having exceptional links to the wider community. The property includes a residence of character and is well sized and well-proportioned offering plenty of accommodation for a large family or perhaps a lettings business. Further, there is the potential to convert further outbuildings subject to consent.

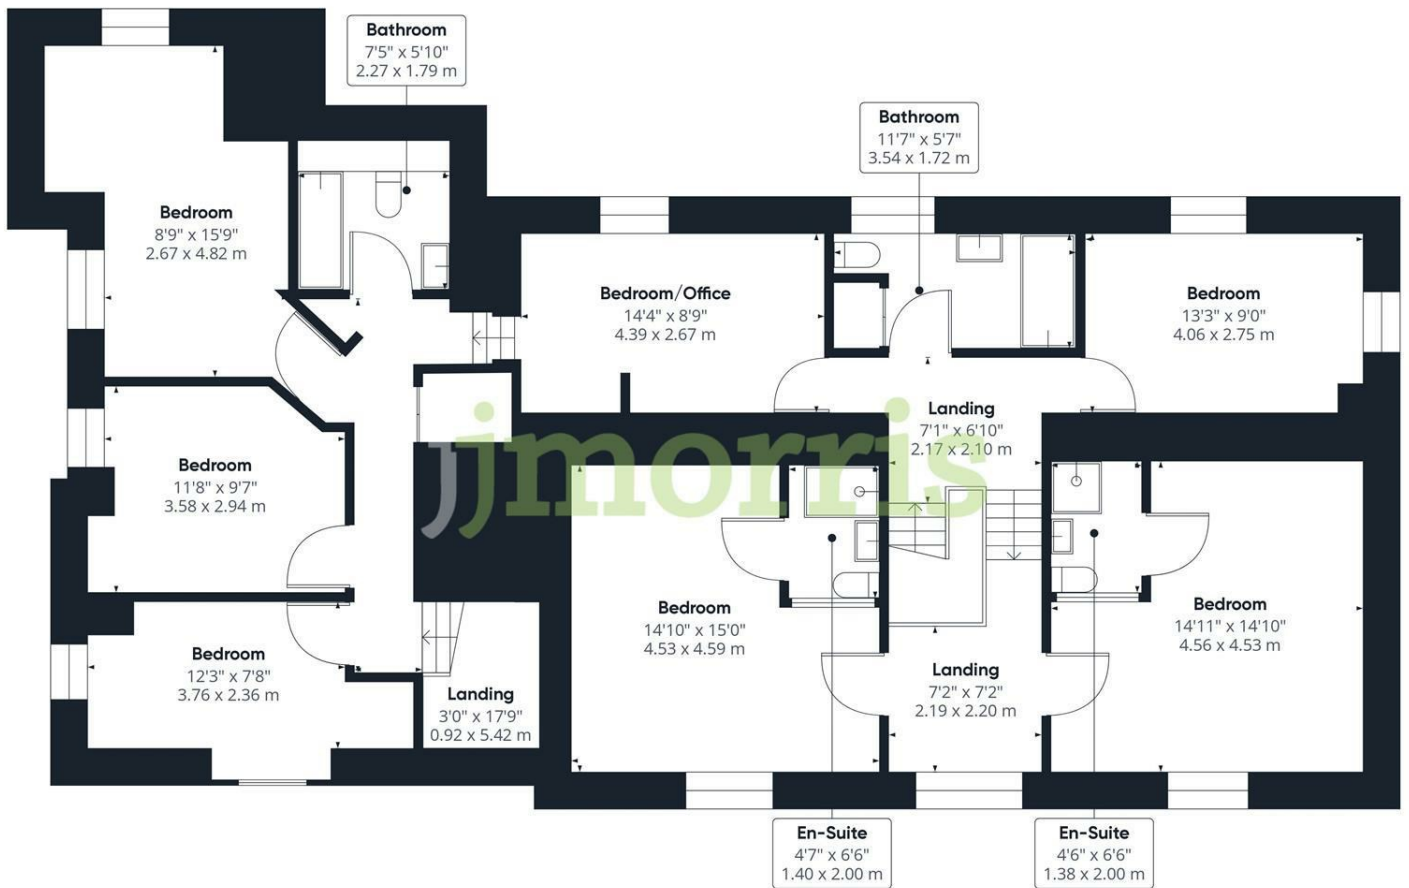

The buildings are typical of a progressive farmstead development being well suited for livestock farming operations. The land lies within a block of highly regarded, productive land being well suited for grazing, cropping and arable applications.

The property is to be offered for sale as a whole or in lots. Viewing is recommended.
