Cardigan (Welsh: Aberteifi) is a historic market town situated on the west coast of Wales, at the mouth of the River Teifi, where it meets Cardigan Bay. It lies within the county of Ceredigion and serves as a gateway to both the Pembrokeshire Coast National Park to the southwest and the scenic landscapes of Mid Wales to the north and east.

The town has deep historical roots, centred around Cardigan Castle, a 12th-century fortress that played a key role in Welsh history and now serves as a cultural and heritage centre. Cardigan was once a major port and remains an important hub for the surrounding rural communities.

Today, Cardigan is known for its vibrant arts scene, independent shops, and local food culture, as well as its proximity to stunning coastal scenery, including nearby beaches such as Poppit Sands. The town attracts visitors seeking heritage, outdoor recreation, and authentic Welsh culture.
