An exquisite, light-filled family home set within an exclusive gated setting, offering grandeur, seclusion and a refined coastal lifestyle.

Set within a discreet gated cul-de-sac in sought-after Blackpill, this impressive detached residence extends to approximately 3,644 sqft, offering a rare balance of scale, elegance and practical family living.

The approach immediately sets the tone, with a sense of privacy and calm, while internally the home opens into a striking double-height reception hall. A galleried landing above enhances the sense of volume, while carefully aligned sightlines draw the eye through double doors into the dining room and onwards to the garden beyond – an arrangement that feels both considered and welcoming.

The principal reception rooms are particularly well proportioned, with the living room, kitchen/family room and gym/snug all spanning the depth of the house. This dual-aspect design allows natural light to move freely throughout the day, creating bright yet comfortable spaces for both everyday living and entertaining. The kitchen/family room forms the natural heart of the home, complemented by a separate dining room which enjoys a pleasant outlook over the rear garden.

Practicality is equally well addressed, with a utility room and guest cloakroom neatly positioned on the ground floor.

To the upper floors, the accommodation is arranged over two levels. The first floor offers four well-sized bedrooms and family facilities, while the second floor is dedicated to an exceptional principal suite. This space is particularly noteworthy, comprising a generous bedroom, dressing room and a distinctive en-suite bathroom featuring a circular bath and separate shower. From the upper floors, there are attractive views stretching towards Swansea Bay.

Externally, the rear garden enjoys a favourable southerly aspect, with a series of thoughtfully arranged seating areas designed to capture the sun throughout the day. The overall feel is one of privacy and ease – an ideal setting for both relaxation and informal entertaining.

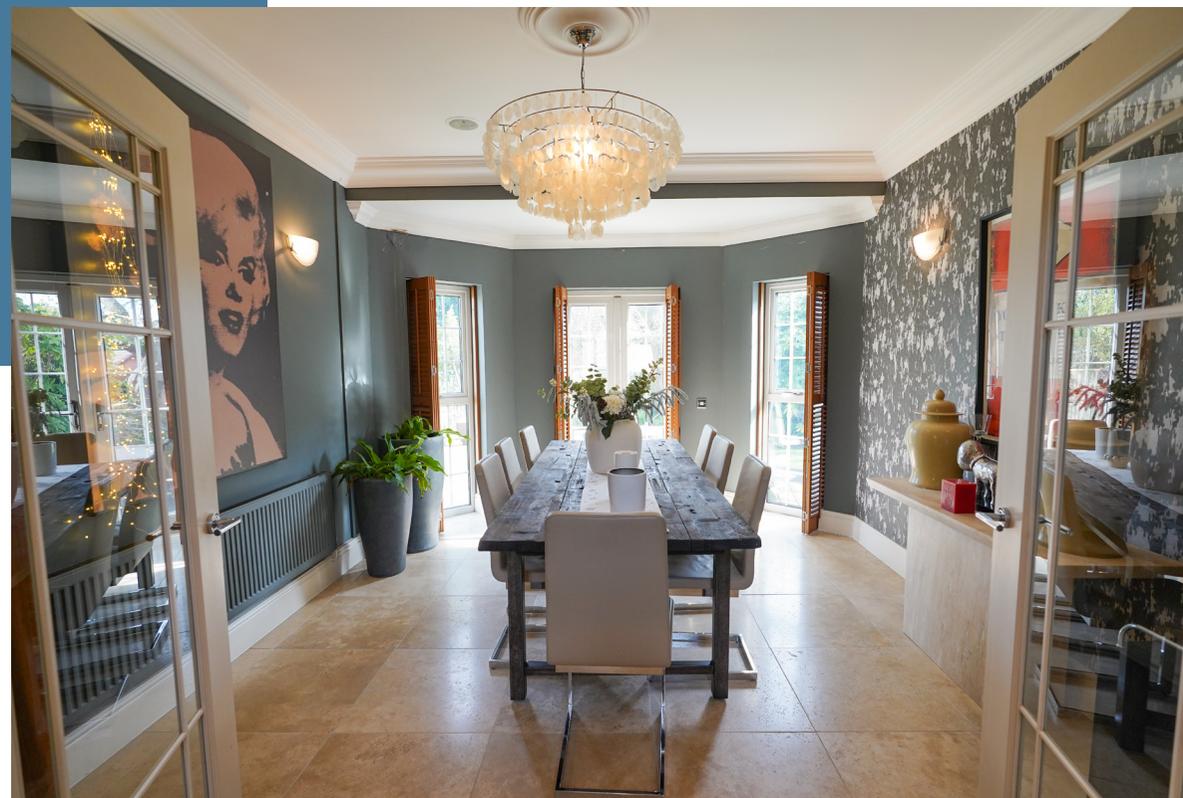

The property is presented in excellent condition throughout, offering a home that is ready to enjoy from the outset.
