About The Property

Set in the Cych Valley at Abercych, this immaculately presented detached six-bedroom home offers around 221 sq m of flexible accommodation, with four bedrooms in the main house and two further en-suite double bedrooms with their own living area on the lower-ground floor. The village is around five miles from the market town of Newcastle Emlyn and approximately six miles from Cardigan and the wider Cardigan Bay area, while the award-winning Nag's Head at Abercych, woodland walks around Ffynone Woods and the well-known waterfalls at Cenarth are all within easy reach. It is a location that works particularly well for those wanting countryside surroundings without being cut off from the towns, coast and amenities of West Wales.

The house sits in an elevated position, making the most of the views across the surrounding valley. A tarmac driveway provides off-road parking for up to four cars and leads to a detached double garage, providing useful additional storage.

The accommodation in the main house is arranged over two floors, with a spacious hallway creating a central point on the ground floor. The interiors have been very well maintained and presented, with a light, contemporary feel throughout.

The kitchen is fitted with a modern range of units incorporating larger cupboards and wine storage, together with a sink and drainer. There is space and plumbing for a dishwasher and washing machine, an electric range-style cooker, and a freestanding fridge/freezer. The proportions of the room allow plenty of space for everyday use, while the extensive work surfaces and storage make it practical for a busy household.

Alongside the kitchen are two separate reception rooms. The dining room provides a dedicated space for family meals and entertaining, while the lounge is a particularly comfortable room with windows at either end and glazed doors opening directly onto the outside decking. A fireplace creates a natural focal point.

Details Continued:

There is also a useful boot room and separate WC on this floor, both practical additions for a home with plenty of outdoor space and countryside close at hand.

Upstairs, a galleried landing leads with built in linen cupboard and doors to four bedrooms and the family bathroom. The principal bedroom is a good-sized double and benefits from its own en-suite shower room. There are three further double bedrooms on this level, giving the main part of the house four bedrooms in total, all with fitted double wardrobes (two in the master) and making the layout suitable for families as well as those needing dedicated office or hobby space.

What sets this property apart is the additional accommodation on the lower-ground floor. This level is accessed independently from outside, with double patio doors opening directly into the central living room and separate external double doors serving each of the two bedrooms. There are two double bedrooms here, both with their own en-suite facilities and one with a fitted wardrobe, together with the central living area. This makes the lower-ground floor particularly useful when family or friends come to stay, allowing guests considerably more independence than a conventional spare bedroom. There is useful run of fitted units, worktop and appliance space within the lower-ground living area. The layout gives considerable scope for the space to be adapted in the future. Subject to any necessary planning permission, building regulations and other consents, there may be potential to create separate annexe-style accommodation, which could suit multi-generational living, extended family or potentially provide an income opportunity.

Externally:

Access to the property is off a country road onto a tarmac drive with parking across the top and to the side for around 4/5 cars. The drive goes down to the detached double garage, with bin storage to the side and raised flower beds to the front. From here steps lead down to the canopied front door. One of the most noticeable features of the property is the extensive Millboard weathered Oak composite decking. This wraps around approximately three-quarters of the house, creating several different outside areas rather than one single terrace. There is space for outdoor dining and seating to the side, with the decking continuing around to a rear balcony overlooking the garden and taking in the valley views. The elevated position gives this part of the house a particularly good connection with its surroundings.

The rear garden is predominantly lawn and provides plenty of usable space. Mature hedging encloses two sides, with fencing to the remaining boundary, and established trees and planting add to the overall setting. The garden sits below the house and decking, with steps providing access between the different levels.

Beneath and around the elevated decking are further paved and gravelled areas, adding useful outdoor space immediately outside the lower-ground accommodation. This also means the two lower-ground bedrooms and living room have direct access outside rather than feeling disconnected from the garden.

With four bedrooms in the main house, two additional en-suite bedrooms and living space on the lower-ground floor, extensive outside decking, a generous rear garden, garage and parking for four cars, this is a particularly flexible home. The standard of presentation means there is little immediate work required, while the lower-ground accommodation leaves scope for the property to change with the needs of its next owners.

Viewing is recommended to appreciate both the amount of accommodation and the flexibility offered across the three levels.

It is worth noting that the driveway is steep, with steps leading down to both the main entrance and rear garden.

INFORMATION ABOUT THE AREA:

Abercych itself follows the wooded Cych Valley and is surrounded by countryside, river and woodland walks. The village is home to the popular Nag's Head, a riverside pub and restaurant which has received national recognition, while nearby Ffynone Woods provide extensive woodland walking. Cenarth is also close by, known for Cenarth Falls on the River Teifi as well as its village amenities.

Newcastle Emlyn is around five miles away and provides a good range of everyday facilities, shops, cafés and services, while Cardigan is approximately six to seven miles away, with supermarkets, independent shops, schools, restaurants and leisure facilities. From Cardigan there is straightforward access to the beaches and coastal villages around Cardigan Bay, making Abercych a useful position for combining the countryside of north Pembrokeshire and the Teifi Valley with the West Wales coast.
