About The Property

On the outskirts of the charming village of St Dogmaels sits a four-bedroom detached house, set within its own private gardens and offering a lifestyle that balances rural living with access to the coast. The setting is appealing, with Cardigan Bay just a short distance away and the wider landscapes of West Wales on the doorstep, making this property a strong choice for those looking to enjoy both countryside and coastline.

The house is approached via a gravelled driveway, wide enough to provide parking for up to four cars. At the end of the drive stands a detached garage, positioned conveniently for both vehicle storage and additional use. To the side, a decked seating area creates a usable outdoor space that connects well with the house. A pathway from the parking area leads to the back door, opening into the rear hallway.

From this hallway, there is direct access to the kitchen/diner, the separate utility room, and a ground floor w/c. The utility room is practical in layout, offering space and plumbing for both a washing machine and a tumble dryer. Wall and base units add to the functionality. The ground floor w/c is equipped with a toilet and sink, providing added convenience.

The kitchen and dining area run the full length of the house, making it a central hub for daily living. Fitted with a range of base and wall units, there is ample storage alongside the 1½ ceramic sink and drainer. Space and plumbing have been arranged for a dishwasher, leaving plenty of scope to personalise appliances. The dining end of this room is naturally lit through sliding doors that open out onto the side garden, creating a natural flow between indoor and outdoor living.

Continued :
From the kitchen, a door leads to the front hallway, where under-stair storage makes use of otherwise lost space. The front door sits at the far end, while to one side there is access to the main lounge and the staircase to the first floor.

The lounge is generously proportioned and has character added through an open fireplace. The cast iron surround and wooden mantel give a sense of warmth, while the windows at the front of the room bring in views of the garden. This combination creates a living area that is both practical in size and appealing in style.

Upstairs, the L-shaped landing provides access to four bedrooms, the family bathroom, and an airing cupboard housing the hot water cylinder. Two of the front-facing bedrooms are both doubles, each benefitting from built-in storage cupboards and views across the garden. The third bedroom, also a double, enjoys a dual aspect through windows on two sides, giving a good sense of space and light. It too comes with its own built-in storage. The fourth bedroom is slightly smaller but still benefits from a storage cupboard, making it suitable for use as a single bedroom, study, or nursery.

The family bathroom completes the upstairs layout, serving all four bedrooms with a jacuzzi-style whirlpool bath, a sink with a vanity unit below and a w/c. The arrangement of the bedrooms offers flexibility, catering well for families or those requiring guest accommodation and home working space.

Externally :
The property offers gardens that extend around all sides. To the front, the main garden is interspersed with pathways, lawned areas, and a variety of mature shrubs, trees, and fruit trees. This planting gives the garden structure and seasonal interest while still maintaining usable open areas. A pergola, formed from four trained and landscaped trees, offers a natural shaded seating spot, providing a feature that blends both design and practicality.

The front door sits beneath a wooden canopy, adding a subtle architectural detail while also serving a useful purpose. Around the gardens, the planting scheme provides a sense of maturity and privacy, while still being manageable in size.

Just beyond the property lies the village Baptist well, a reminder of the historic fabric of St Dogmaels. The village itself is well known for its character, community, and proximity to the Teifi Estuary. Cardigan Bay is close at hand, offering wide sandy beaches, coastal walks, and a strong connection to the natural landscapes that define West Wales. The combination of estuary, countryside, and coastline make this location particularly appealing, offering a mix of settings within easy reach.

In summary, this four-bedroom detached house provides a layout suited to family life, with gardens and outdoor areas that add real appeal. Its position on the edge of St Dogmaels offers a balance between village life and access to the coast, while the practicality of parking, garage with an electric hook-up for car charging and an electric roller door, and utility spaces make day-to-day living straightforward. The proximity to Cardigan Bay and the broader landscapes of West Wales adds a lifestyle element that enhances the property's overall appeal, making it a strong option for those looking to enjoy the benefits of this part of the country.
