About The Property

Looking for a substantial detached home with flexible living space, a generous plot, a detached garage, all within easy reach of Cardigan Bay in West Wales? This well-proportioned property in Bwlch y Groes offers five bedrooms, multiple reception areas and a layout that works well for family life or those needing space to adapt.

Set within the rural village of Bwlch y Groes, Woodfold is a well-built detached home completed in 2005, offering a practical layout, good room sizes and a sense of space both inside and out. With uPVC sliding sash windows, oil fired central heating and a plot that provides ample parking alongside a detached garage, it strikes a sensible balance between modern convenience and countryside living.

The approach is through gated access onto a gravelled frontage, providing parking for several vehicles and giving the house a strong first impression. The detached garage sits to one side, offering useful storage or workshop potential.

The main entrance opens into a spacious hallway, with a useful walk-in airing cupboard and additional under-stairs storage. The layout from here is straightforward and easy to follow, with doors leading through to the principal ground floor rooms.

The living room sits to one side and is a well-proportioned space with dual windows bringing in natural light. There is plenty of room for seating, making it a comfortable main reception room. The kitchen is a real feature of the house. Stretching across the rear, it offers an impressive amount of workspace and storage, with a range of fitted units, integrated appliances and space for additional freestanding items. The proportions allow for informal dining or a sociable layout, and the timber flooring adds a practical finish. From here, an opening leads into the sunroom.

The sunroom is positioned to enjoy views over the rear garden, with windows on two sides and doors opening directly onto the patio seating area. It's an easy space to imagine being used day-to-day, whether for dining or simply as a light-filled sitting area.

A utility room sits just off the kitchen, keeping laundry and household tasks separate, with a door leading outside. There is also a ground-floor Jack & Jill shower room, adding to the practicality of the layout, linking to the downstairs bedroom.

Also on the ground floor is a further bedroom, which could equally serve as a home office or additional reception room, depending on needs. Alongside this the shower room, making the ground floor suitable for those requiring more accessible accommodation.

Upstairs, the galleried landing adds a sense of openness, with a window to the front bringing in natural light and giving a view over the surrounding area.

The principal bedroom is particularly generous, with two windows to the front and ample space for freestanding furniture. It is served by an en-suite bathroom. Two further double bedrooms offer good proportions, while a fourth bedroom provides flexibility as a smaller double, single or study space.

The family bathroom is well-sized and fitted with a four-piece suite including bath and separate shower, which works well for busy households.

Externally, the rear garden is set up for straightforward use, with a patio seating area directly off the garden room and a lawned section beyond. There is space for planting, growing or simply keeping things manageable depending on preference. A greenhouse and additional garden features add to the overall usability of the space, as well as a garden shed.

The detached garage is a strong addition, providing secure storage, parking or workshop potential, with power connected.

Overall, Woodfold offers a sensible and flexible layout with good proportions throughout. It's the kind of property that works well for a range of buyers, whether as a family home, multi-generational setup or for those simply wanting more internal space alongside a manageable plot in West Wales, with the coastline of Cardigan Bay within reach.

Early viewing is recommended to fully appreciate the space and flexibility on offer.
