About The Property

In the heart of Abercych, this three-bedroom split-level detached house brings together village living with open views across the Cych Valley. With its flexible layout, well-kept presentation and thoughtful outdoor spaces, the property has plenty to offer those who want to live within reach of both the coast and the countryside.

Abercych itself is a small but lively community, tucked into the West Wales countryside yet only a short drive from Cardigan and the sweeping coastline of Cardigan Bay. The village is known for its friendly feel, traditional pub and direct access into some of the prettiest wooded valleys in the area. This house sits right in the centre, making it easy to be part of village life while still enjoying space and privacy.

From the outside, the property shows off a brick paviour driveway with room for up to three vehicles, in addition to an integral garage that can hold another car or, subject to needs, be adapted for further use. In fact, the owners informed us that planning permission was previously granted to convert this garage into a bedroom with an en-suite wet room, but this planning has now lapsed, but this could have further scope for buyers who want more accommodation in the future.

Inside, the upper level of the split layout includes the lounge and kitchen/breakfast room. The lounge is bright and well-proportioned, with double-glazed windows on two sides, including one that looks across the Cych Valley. A feature brick fireplace with a coal-effect electric fire provides a focal point. Next door, the kitchen/breakfast room is fitted with a good range of units and has space for everyday dining. It comes with an integral fridge, built-in double oven and ceramic hob, with a rear window making the most of the views. From this level, there is direct access into the integral garage.

Continued :

A staircase leads down to the lower floor, where the three bedrooms, bathroom and utility area are arranged. The master bedroom is at the back, with a wide window and twin radiators, while the second bedroom also overlooks the garden and valley. The third bedroom includes a built-in wardrobe and the same outlook. The shower room has a shower with enclosure, pedestal wash basin and WC, and the utility offers extra storage as well as plumbing for appliances, and an additional storage cupboard has space for a tumble dryer. A rear door from this level provides access straight into the garden.

Externally, the rear garden has been cleverly designed to work with the natural slope, creating a tiered arrangement that offers several different spots for sitting out and enjoying the views. From the back door, a decked area leads down to further levels with a mixture of decking, patio and gravelled sections. The planting includes flowers, shrubs and bushes, and a summer house sits at the lowest level, making the most of the outlook across the Cych Valley. This level also benefits from a gravelled area and a beautiful rockery made of Pembrokeshire Blue Stone. There is also storage beneath the decked area, along with an external socket.

The location is a strong draw. Abercych is just a short drive from Cardigan, a historic market town with a good range of shops, cafes and schools. From there, Cardigan Bay stretches out with its long sandy beaches, rocky headlands and popular wildlife watching opportunities. The Cych Valley itself is a particularly beautiful part of West Wales, with wooded hillsides and walking routes that bring a strong sense of being surrounded by nature.

Overall, this is a beautiful home that balances village life, practical living space and outdoor areas that have been set up to be easy to use while making the most of the setting, and the driveway parking for several cars is another practical benefit. With the combination of the location in Abercych, the views across the valley and the easy reach of Cardigan Bay,
