About The Property

Looking for a spacious detached bungalow with character, plenty of parking and great potential, sitting on 0.31 acre grounds? This two-bedroom property sits on a generous plot, with multiple outbuildings, mature gardens, and a handy location between Cardigan Bay and the Pembrokeshire coast.

This well-kept bungalow, in need of some modernising in places, offers plenty of space both inside and out, tucked just off the road on the outskirts of the village of Eglwysrw – a rural spot positioned nicely between the busier towns of Cardigan and Newport. With the coastlines of Cardigan Bay and West Wales within a short drive, and daily needs covered in the village or nearby towns, the location works well for those wanting a bit of space without feeling cut off.

Inside, the layout flows well for day-to-day life. There's an entrance porch at the front, fully glazed and with tiled flooring, offering a handy buffer space between outdoors and in. The kitchen is a practical size with plenty of wooden units and granite-effect worktops, plus a gas hob, double oven and integrated fridge-freezer. The tiled floor and wood panelled walls give it a traditional feel, and the front window keeps it light.

The kitchen opens through to a casual living area – carpeted and fitted with an electric fire – which could easily work as a dining space, a cosy corner, or even a snug depending on what's needed. From here, there's a step into the main lounge, a bigger room that runs across the far end of the property. This space is comfortable and warm, with a log burner sitting on a stone hearth, and sliding patio doors leading out to the conservatory.

The conservatory is tiled and provides an extra place to sit out, with views over the front garden and french doors to the side. It adds a bright, flexible extension to the living space – ideal for plant lovers or simply a spot to relax.

Details Continued:

The hallway, lined with timber panelling, runs through the heart of the home, linking the bedrooms and bathroom. Both bedrooms are doubles and positioned at the back of the property for extra privacy. They each have built-in wardrobes and a pedestal sink, which adds a practical touch, especially if guests are staying. The bathroom itself is fully tiled, with a panel bath and overhead shower, along with a WC and vanity sink.

The utility room sits at the rear, with another sink, plenty of storage, and plumbing for a washing machine or dryer. It leads directly to the back garden, which makes it ideal for dealing with muddy boots or pets.

Heating is provided via an air source system, and solar panels are also in place – a welcome addition for those looking to cut energy costs. There's also an oil boiler and tank on site, though this isn't currently in use.

Externally:

Externally, the plot is a generous one, measuring around 0.39 acres. A drive sweeps around off the main road to the side, providing off-road parking for several vehicles. The garden is mainly grass with mature shrubs and hedging on one side and fencing on the other, providing boundaries. A path runs around the property, with a patio area to the front. Several outbuildings are dotted across the plot – a greenhouse, a shed, and even an old railway carriage which could offer storage or scope for a hobby space. There's also a single, attached garage with power, lighting – and enough room for a car and additional storage.

With a flexible layout, practical outbuildings and a great amount of outdoor space, this property would work equally well for a family, a retired couple or anyone looking for a manageable bungalow with room to personalise. The location adds to its appeal – a quiet village setting with plenty of countryside around, yet within reach of the coast and local towns.

INFORMATION ABOUT THE AREA:

The property sits just on the edge of Eglwysrw – a village with a primary school, shop and petrol station, so day-to-day needs are within reach. Cardigan is around 7 miles to the north-west, offering a wider choice of supermarkets, schools, and high street shops, while Fishguard lies to the south-west. Newport and Poppit Sands are both an easy drive, offering scenic walks and access to the well-loved coastline of West Wales.
