About The Property

No Forward Chain Looking for a spacious and versatile home close to Newcastle Emlyn, with far-reaching countryside views and more accommodation than first meets the eye? This well-presented property in Adpar offers three bedrooms on the main level together with a generous kitchen/dining room, living room and elevated deck, plus a substantial lower floor providing further flexible accommodation.

Set in an elevated position in Adpar, on the edge of the popular market town of Newcastle Emlyn, this well-presented home offers an unusual amount of space arranged over two levels. With three bedrooms on the main level, generous living accommodation, a substantial lower floor and lovely views across the surrounding countryside, the layout lends itself to family life, working from home or simply having additional space for guests and hobbies.

The property is approached from the front, where a driveway provides off-road parking, with the useful addition of further parking opposite the property.

An entrance door opens into a long hallway with storage, which provides access to the bedrooms and bathroom and towards the main living accommodation. There are three comfortable bedrooms on this level, two of which benefit from fitted mirrored wardrobes, while the family bathroom is fitted with a bath with shower over, wash hand basin and WC.

One of the real strengths of the property is the living space to the rear, which makes the most of its elevated setting. The kitchen and dining room form a generous open area, fitted with a good range of Symphony New England Ivory units complemented by Neff appliances and dark work surfaces. There is plenty of room for a family-sized dining table, and the windows immediately draw attention towards the open countryside beyond.

Continued:

A separate utility room provides further fitted cupboards and work surfaces together with space and plumbing for laundry appliances, helping to keep the practical side of the home away from the main kitchen. There is also a separate W/C located off the integral garage.

The dining area opens directly into the living room, creating a sociable flow between the principal reception spaces whilst still allowing each area to retain its own identity. The living room is particularly well positioned, with wide glazed doors framing the outlook and opening directly onto the raised deck.

This deck is a major feature of the home. Running across the rear and enclosed by contemporary glazed balustrading, it provides plenty of room for outdoor seating and dining, with far-reaching views over the rooftops towards the rolling West Wales countryside. It effectively extends the living accommodation outdoors and gives both the living and dining areas a strong connection with the setting.

Perhaps the biggest surprise comes from the lower level.

Accessed via stairs from the dining area, these are cleverly concealed beneath a floor hatch when not required. The hatch is electrically operated by a wall switch, allowing the dining space above to remain usable without a permanent open staircase interrupting the room.

At the bottom of the stairs is a small hallway leading to a further bedroom/study area, currently arranged with space for a desk and seating with direct access to the garden. There is also a substantial additional bedroom currently incorporating sleeping and sitting areas, together with an en-suite shower room.

This lower level considerably increases the versatility of the property. It could work particularly well as guest accommodation, a teenager's space, home office and hobby area, or simply as useful additional living accommodation alongside the main three-bedroom layout.

Outside, the elevated deck is complemented by a lower garden, reached via steps from the deck or via the side access. The garden incorporates a lawn, paved and gravelled areas, established boundaries and a garden pond, with useful space beneath the raised deck. Its different levels give the outside space plenty of interest without requiring extensive grounds to maintain.

The property benefits from oil-fired central heating and combines a convenient edge-of-town location with an outlook that feels considerably more rural. Newcastle Emlyn provides a good selection of independent shops, cafés, places to eat and drink, schooling and leisure facilities, while the wider location provides straightforward access towards Cardigan, Llandysul and Carmarthen.

Overall, this is a home that is difficult to judge from the roadside alone. Behind its relatively modest appearance is a surprisingly spacious and adaptable interior, with three main-level bedrooms, generous reception space, additional lower-floor accommodation and an elevated deck positioned to take full advantage of the countryside views.
