About The Property

Looking for a character-filled country home with stunning gardens, flexible accommodation and a setting close to the coast? This beautifully kept property near Ceibwr Beach combines a traditional stone house, separate lodge accommodation and around 4 acres of enchanting gardens and woodland in one of the most sought-after corners of West Wales.

Tucked away within the village of Moylegrove, just a short drive from the dramatic coastline and hidden coves of Cardigan Bay, this charming home has the kind of atmosphere that is hard to recreate. The original house is full of warmth and personality, with exposed beams, stone walls, timber floors and cottage-style features running throughout, while outside the gardens feel more like a private botanical haven than a standard residential plot.

The approach immediately sets the tone, with mature planting and winding pathways leading to the attractive stone frontage. The gardens surrounding the property are beautifully established, packed with colour, texture and a wide variety of plants and shrubs. There are seating areas tucked between borders, gravelled terraces for outdoor dining, lawns bordered by mature trees, ponds and wooded sections leading down towards the river. It is the sort of garden that changes with the seasons and would appeal hugely to keen gardeners, wildlife lovers or anyone wanting a more natural lifestyle setting in West Wales.

The main house opens into a useful porch with built-in seating and space for coats and boots before leading through to the kitchen and dining room. This room really captures the character of the property, with slate flooring, exposed beams and a fireplace adding to the cottage feel. The kitchen itself is fitted with solid timber units and worktops, creating a practical but traditional space that sits naturally with the age and style of the home.

From here, the accommodation flows into the main living room, a particularly impressive room with exposed stone walls, substantial timber beams and an inglenook-style fireplace housing a woodburning stove. It is a comfortable and cosy space with plenty of room for family seating while still retaining a welcoming atmosphere.

To the rear of the house is a generous sun room overlooking the gardens. Currently used as a treatment and therapy room, it would also work well as a garden room, studio, home office or second sitting room. Large windows and glazed doors make the most of the outlook across the surrounding greenery and bring in plenty of natural light.

The first floor offers two spacious bedrooms along with a family bathroom and an additional shower room/en-suite arrangement. Both bedrooms continue the character theme seen throughout the property, with timber flooring, feature fireplaces and attractive garden views.

On the second floor are two further attic-style bedrooms with exposed beams, vaulted ceilings and stone feature walls. These rooms have a lovely cottage feel and provide flexible accommodation for family, guests or hobbies.

A particularly useful addition to the property is the detached wooden lodge located within the grounds. This separate accommodation provides additional flexibility and could suit multi-generational living, guest accommodation, or a work-from-home setup, subject to any necessary consents. The layout includes a kitchen/living space, bathroom and bedrooms, making it a genuinely self-contained space within the grounds.

Outside is where this home becomes something rather special. The gardens stretch through different sections including formal planted areas, gravel terraces, natural woodland and open lawned spaces. Mature willow trees, colourful acers, established borders and winding pathways create a setting that feels wonderfully private and established. The river boundary adds another layer of charm, with the sound of running water and surrounding woodland creating a very calming atmosphere.

The wider location is equally appealing. Moylegrove is a sought-after village close to Ceibwr Bay and the Pembrokeshire coastline, known for its dramatic cliffs, coastal walks and hidden coves. The nearby coast path offers some of the finest scenery in Cardigan Bay and West Wales, while the market towns of Cardigan and Newport provide a good range of shops, cafes, restaurants and everyday amenities within easy reach.

Properties combining this level of character, mature gardens, flexible accommodation and coastal proximity rarely become available, particularly in such a well-regarded part of West Wales.
