About The Property

AUCTION PROPERTY: GUIDE PRICE* £250,000+ fees.**

Looking for a rural smallholding with land, outbuildings and plenty of potential close to the Cardigan Bay coastline? Set within approximately 6.25 acres near Blaencelyn and Llangrannog, this three-bedroom detached house requires renovation and updating but offers an increasingly hard-to-find combination of accommodation, land, useful buildings and scope to create a very individual West Wales home

This detached three-bedroom house sits within approximately 6.25 acres of grounds and land. Coming to the market by auction, the property is in need of renovation and updating and presents an interesting opportunity for buyers looking for a home with land where they can carry out improvements to suit their own requirements.

The house itself offers surprisingly generous accommodation, extending to approximately 130 sq m according to the floor plan, with two separate reception rooms, a kitchen, sunroom, three bedrooms and both a bathroom and shower room. There is also an attached garage with WC, while the wider holding includes a collection of useful outbuildings and a good-sized area of pasture.

The main entrance opens into the hallway, where stairs rise to the first floor and doors lead into the ground-floor living accommodation.

To one side is the lounge, a separate reception room with a window looking out over the surrounding grounds. Across the hallway is the living room, which has a fireplace housing a solid-fuel stove and provides a second good-sized reception space.

The kitchen is positioned beyond the living room and is a generous room with plenty of space for a future buyer to redesign and refit. One of its most appealing existing features is the traditional Aga-style range set into the chimney breast, adding character and providing a natural focal point to the room.

Continued
A door from the kitchen leads into the sunroom, which runs across the rear of this part of the house. Although this room also requires work, it provides useful additional space and could form a pleasant connection between the house and its surroundings once refurbished.

Completing the ground floor is the attached garage, which incorporates a WC and provides useful storage, workshop or parking space.

Upstairs, the layout is slightly unusual and adds to the character of the house, with the staircase dividing to serve the first-floor accommodation.

There are three bedrooms in total. Two are particularly generous double rooms, with the third also providing comfortable bedroom accommodation. The first floor benefits from both a bathroom and a separate shower room, a useful arrangement for a three-bedroom home.

The property now requires a programme of improvement, and there are areas where signs of damp and general deterioration are visible. This has been reflected in its presentation and auction sale, giving a purchaser the chance to take on a substantial rural property and shape the house around their own plans and style.

Outside, Land & Outbuildings:

The outside space is a particularly important part of what is on offer here. The property stands within approximately 6.25 acres, providing considerably more than simply a garden and giving the holding genuine smallholding appeal.

Closer to the house are established grounds with mature trees, hedging and areas which have become overgrown and would benefit from being brought back under management. For someone who enjoys creating a garden rather than inheriting a finished one, there is plenty of scope to clear, landscape and establish different areas for growing, seating or wildlife.

Beyond the immediate grounds is a substantial area of pasture, bordered in places by mature hedgerows and trees. The land opens out into an attractive field and could suit a variety of smallholding, grazing or amenity uses, depending upon individual requirements.

A particularly useful feature is the collection of outbuildings. These include substantial corrugated agricultural-style buildings together with further block-built storage/workshop structures. Their existing condition and suitability for any particular use would need to be assessed by a purchaser, but they add another dimension to the holding and provide valuable space for machinery, storage, hobbies or smallholding equipment.

There is also a generous yard area around the buildings, allowing space for vehicles and access between the various parts of the holding.

Taken as a whole, this is not a polished or finished property, and that is really where its appeal lies. The house, grounds and buildings all require attention, but the fundamentals are here: a detached three-bedroom home, approximately 6.25 acres, useful outbuildings and a rural setting within reach of one of Ceredigion's best-known coastal villages.

For buyers prepared to take on a project, there is considerable scope to create a characterful country home with land, whether the eventual aim is a family smallholding, space for animals, gardening and growing, workshops and hobbies, or simply the chance to enjoy more space in the West Wales countryside.

The Area :

Blaencelyn is a small rural community close to Llangrannog, placing the property within easy reach of the Cardigan Bay coastline while retaining a distinctly countryside setting. Llangrannog is one of Ceredigion's best-known seaside villages, centred around its sandy beach and distinctive Carreg Bica rock formation, with a village shop, pubs and cafés as well as access to the Ceredigion Coast Path.

The wider area is particularly well suited to those who enjoy the outdoors, with coastal and countryside walking, beaches and numerous small villages dotted throughout this part of West Wales. The market town of Llandysul provides a wider selection of everyday facilities inland, while New Quay and Cardigan offer further shopping, schooling, leisure and services within the wider area.

This location therefore offers an appealing balance: countryside and land at home, with the beaches and coastal communities of Cardigan Bay within easy travelling distance.
