About The Property

Looking for a character home with space to grow, a substantial workshop and beautifully kept gardens?

Set in a rural location just outside the village of Rhos, this attractive detached period home combines original character with generous living space, a detached former barn now used as a workshop and studio, and over half an acre of grounds that provide both privacy and room to enjoy the surrounding countryside. The detached outbuilding also offers potential for conversion into an annexe or holiday accommodation, subject to the necessary planning consents.

Approached through double gates onto a generous gravel driveway, the property immediately creates a welcoming first impression. The traditional façade, mature trees and carefully maintained gardens sit comfortably within the surrounding countryside, while ample parking and a detached garage provide plenty of practical space.

The entrance hall reflects the character found throughout the house, with original tiled flooring, stained glass detailing and an impressive staircase rising to the first floor. The proportions are immediately noticeable, with high ceilings, period features and natural light creating a bright and welcoming feel.

The main sitting room is a particularly elegant reception room centred around a decorative feature fireplace, complemented by large windows overlooking the gardens. Across the hallway, the second reception room offers a more relaxed atmosphere with an attractive feature fireplace, making it an ideal family room or cosy evening retreat.

To the rear, the farmhouse-style kitchen is both practical and full of character. Traditional cabinetry, space for a recessed range cooker and space for family dining make it a room designed for everyday living, while windows on multiple elevations frame views across the gardens and surrounding countryside. A useful ground floor cloakroom and utility areas completes the accommodation downstairs.

Continued throughout the seasons.

The first floor continues the generous proportions, with three well-sized double bedrooms, each enjoying attractive rural outlooks. The principal bedroom is particularly spacious, while the family bathroom features both a separate shower and a freestanding roll-top bath positioned to take advantage of the far-reaching countryside views.

A detached former barn has been sympathetically converted into an extensive workshop and studio space. Currently arranged as a creative workspace with separate storage, WC facilities and mezzanine storage, it provides tremendous flexibility for anyone working from home, pursuing hobbies or requiring substantial storage. Given its size and layout, there is clear potential for conversion into a self-contained annexe, guest accommodation or holiday let, subject to obtaining the necessary planning permissions and building regulations.

Outside is where the property continues to impress. The gardens have clearly been lovingly maintained, with sweeping lawns, colourful borders, mature trees and a small bridge crossing a gentle stream, creating several attractive areas to sit and enjoy the extensive driveway provides parking for numerous vehicles.

Altogether, this is a home that offers far more than simply three bedrooms. It combines period character, practical family accommodation, versatile outbuildings and beautifully established gardens in a countryside setting, while remaining within easy reach of local amenities and the wider West Wales coastline.

Situated just outside the village of Rhos, the property enjoys a rural setting surrounded by open countryside while remaining convenient for everyday amenities. The nearby market towns of Newcastle Emlyn, Cardigan and Llandysul are all within comfortable driving distance, offering independent shops, supermarkets, schools and leisure facilities. The spectacular Cardigan Bay coastline, with beaches such as Aberporth, Tresaith and Llangrannog, is also easily accessible, making this an excellent location for those wanting countryside living without feeling isolated.
