"I moved to Bristol about 15 years ago for an apprenticeship in Engineering. I grew up in villages most my life, so being in Bristol, yet having that country feel has been great. I also wanted to find somewhere quiet with the potential to settle down for years to come with good schools nearby and space to go out and explore. The first bit that grabbed my attention with the house was having two gardens that catch the sun and the funky layout. It's been great living here, the neighbours are great, there is a small sense of community, but no-one forces anyone to be involved and the walks nearby are peaceful and varied. Every summer the doors are open, and you get a lovely breeze throughout the house, and you can have a barbecue on both sides! It's just been a great house, and I will definitely miss living here."
