"One of my favourite moments here is early evening, when golden hour light comes in and the park goes quiet. Because it's end-terrace with windows on three sides, light shifts through the day and from the living room you see more trees than rooftops, which still feels rare in the middle of Bristol. In summer the gardens fill with colour and in the evenings, you can hear tawny owls nearby. It's a small thing, but it's always made it feel calm and tucked away."
