"We chose this house due to its proximity to St George's park at one end of the street and the cemetery leading through the woods to Troopers Hill and beyond to the river at the other end of our street - a lovely walk which feels as if you've left the city. At the other end of the street there is easy access to the independent shops and cafes of Church Road. The house itself is a lovely refuge, quiet and well built, with an unusual amount of living space. Its been the perfect space for our family."
