"We've loved living on Arlington Road for the past three years. The location has been perfect – just a short walk to so many green spaces, it's easy to forget you're still in the city. The road itself is quiet and peaceful, with a real sense of community and friendly neighbours, plus a great local pub, The Langton. The open-plan living and dining area has been the heart of our home – bright, flexible, and full of character. It hosted everything from family dinners and cups of tea with friends to art projects. The space feels light and airy in summer, while the wood burner makes it wonderfully cosy in winter. What we'll miss most, though, is the community feel of the street and the easy access to green spaces. This home has been a place of comfort, creativity, and connection for us, and we know it will be just as special for whoever moves in next."
