£1,250,000

GENERAL

Sion House forms the principal part of Sion Hill Court, a beautiful Grade II listed Georgian country house set within substantial parkland grounds circa 12 acres. The setting is spectacular with breathtaking views over some of the finest Worcestershire countryside towards the Welsh Borders. The house, which is freehold, includes the principal reception rooms which are all graciously proportioned with high ceilings, ornate plasterwork, and sash windows. Of particular note are the panelled hall and dining room where the panelling is believed to have been recovered from The Royal Palace of Tickenhill, Bewdley, where Arthur, Prince of Wales married Catherine of Aragon by proxy in 1499. The house has a rich history and is reputed to have been the birthplace and country home of John Baskerville the pioneering printer, who created the Baskerville font, and the 19th century stained glass panels in the main door bears the famous Baskerville crest.

The accommodation briefly includes on the ground floor the panelled reception hall, boot room, dining room, drawing room, and living kitchen. There are seven bedrooms and five bathrooms spread over the upper floors and a boiler on each floor. There is also a wine cellar and two further vaulted cellar rooms. Outside there are two oversized single garages and a large private terrace.

The living accommodation is approx. 6910 sq ft / 642 sq m.

LOCATION

Sion House is located within the highly regarded parish of Wolverley, where there is an excellent range of local amenities including primary and secondary schools a surgery and a selection of public houses. There are some lovely walks locally through the National Trust owned Blakeshall Common, linking into Kinver Edge famous for its Rock Houses cut into the sandstone, in addition to walks along the local canal. Sion House is superbly located for easy access to the M5, M42 and M6 motorway network, with Birmingham being approximately 15 miles by car. The town of Kidderminster is only 3 miles away where there are an excellent range of amenities and a rail service connecting to Birmingham, Worcester, and London. Birmingham airport and international train station are approx. 30 miles away (40 minutes). With regular trains into London Euston, taking just over an hour.
