Ewell Village itself is a picturesque and historic setting with roots dating back to the Bronze Age. Once home to Henry VIII's Nonsuch Palace, now the site of the much-loved Nonsuch Park, the village offers a rich sense of heritage alongside a bustling community atmosphere. The High Street features an excellent selection of independent shops, cafés, pubs, and restaurants, while Bourne Hall serves as the local cultural centre, with a library, museum, gym, and theatre hosting regular events and exhibitions throughout the year.

Surrounded by green spaces, well-regarded schools, and a network of scenic walking trails, including the Hogsmill River and nearby nature reserve, this location offers a rare blend of convenience and tranquillity. With both Ewell East and Ewell West stations in Zone 6 and offering regular services into London in around 40 minutes, this beautifully presented home is perfectly placed for those seeking space, style, and superb access in one of Surrey's most sought-after village settings.
