“

Positioned within easy reach of Reigate’s shops, cafes and station, this home offers a practical yet polished lifestyle. With space to grow into and a layout that adapts with you, it’s a property that works just as well long-term as it does immediately.

Set within a neat mews just off Albert Road North, this four-bedroom townhouse is arranged across three floors and offers a layout that feels both considered and easy to live in. It's a home that reveals itself properly once inside, with space that's been used intelligently rather than simply filled.

The ground floor is centred around a 30ft open-plan kitchen, dining and living space that naturally divides into distinct areas without losing its sense of openness. Whether it's day-to-day living or having people over, it's a room that adapts without effort. The kitchen is finished in a clean, modern style with integrated appliances and good worktop provision, keeping everything practical without overcomplicating it.

Doors lead directly out to the rear garden, which has been designed with low upkeep in mind while still giving you usable outdoor space. It works just as well for a quiet coffee as it does for a bit more activity in the warmer months.

The first floor hosts three bedrooms along with the main bathroom, all of which are well-balanced in size and layout. There's flexibility here to use the rooms as needed, whether that's for sleeping, working from home or a combination of both.

Occupying the top floor, the principal bedroom has a slightly more private feel, complete with its own dressing area and bathroom. It creates a natural separation from the rest of the house and gives the space a more considered, almost suite-like setup.

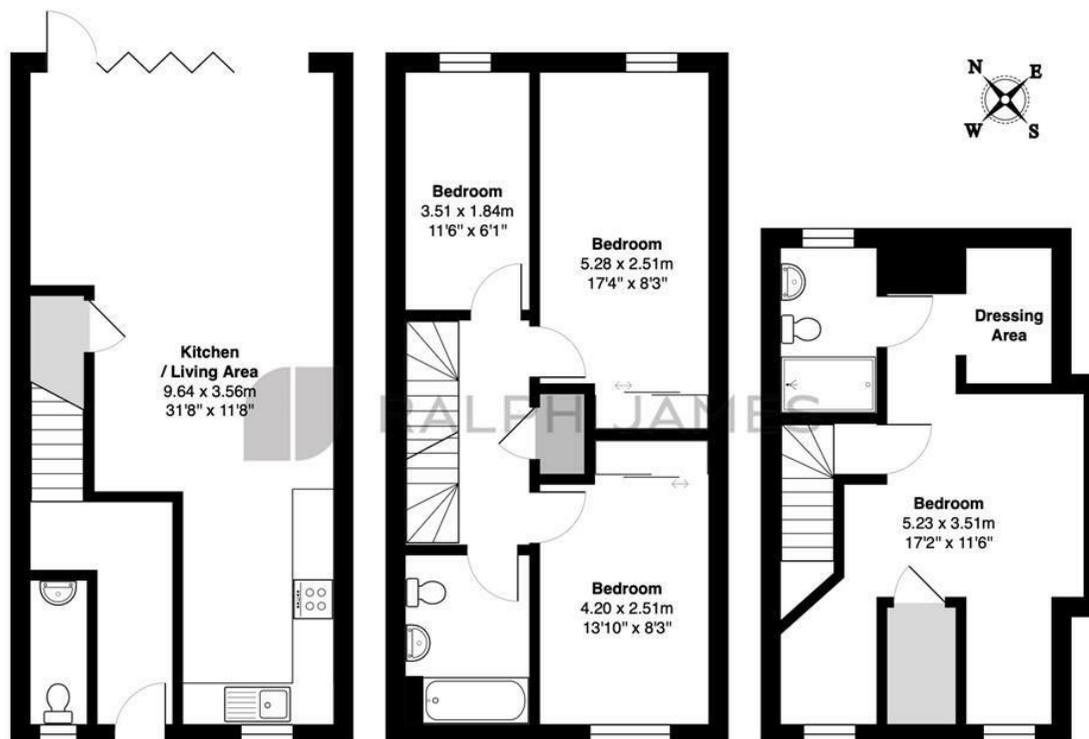

In total, the property offers four bedrooms, two bathrooms and a downstairs cloakroom, all arranged in a way that feels logical and comfortable rather than over-designed.

Chantry Mews itself sits within easy reach of Reigate's town centre, with its mix of independent shops, restaurants and everyday essentials, as well as convenient access to the station for commuting. It's a location that manages to feel tucked away without losing connection to everything around it.
