The Location

Nash Mills is so named after the paper mills that used to form the major industry locally. Although the old paper mills have now been replaced by new housing, there are many historical reminders, in particular John Dickinson's main residence, now occupied by Abbots Hill School, and the Apsley Paper Trail. The location is excellent with all amenities close at hand. The canal path gives immediate access to the local Sainsbury supermarket and Apsley Marina; also nearby is the pretty village of Kings Langley, whilst St Albans City and Watford Town centres are both only a short drive away. The countryside is also close at hand via Bunkers Lane, or alternatively there are pleasant walks along the adjacent canal. The Railway Station at Apsley (a short walk away) provides a fast service (30 minutes) to London Euston. Access to the M1 (Junction 8) or the M25 (Junction 20) at Kings Langley are also both accessible within 5 minutes. Heathrow Airport is also easily accessible.
