The Location

The local area of Apsley is an outer district of Hemel Hempstead and is still a busy commercial centre. Nash Mills is so named after the paper mills that used to form the major industry locally. Although the old paper mills have now been replaced by new housing, there are many historical reminders, in particular John Dickinson's main residence, now occupied by Abbots Hill School, and the Apsley Paper Trail. The Victorian shops that grew up when it was a mill town now house newsagents, public houses, restaurants, and a range of small businesses. The former mill sites are taken up with supermarkets, retail parks and offices. Housing developments combining the canal side location with the ease of access to Apsley railway station (offering direct access to London Euston) have been very successful.

Leisure Pursuits Near To Apsley & Nash Mills
When it comes to health and fitness, Hemel Hempstead, only 1 mile from Apsley boasts a wealth of leisure amenities that few towns can rival. The No 1 leisure destination is Jarman Square, to be found next to a Tesco Extra. This has extreme sports facilities, High Ropes, a skate park, as well as a multi-screen/IMAX cinema and family friendly eateries like Prezzo, Hungry Horse and Nandos. There's also a no-contract gym on the site. Other local sports amenities include Little Hay Golf Complex, where you don't need to be a member to play, and Hemel Hempstead Sports Centre, with squash and tennis courts, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, gym and exercise classes.

Travel Links

The Railway Station at Apsley (a short walk away) provides a fast service (30 minutes) to London Euston. Alternatively Kings Langley station is also within easy striking distance of the property. Access to the M1 (Junction 8) or the M25 (Junction 20) at Kings Langley are also both accessible within 5 minutes. Heathrow Airport is also easily accessible.
