The Location

Tring is a small picturesque market town in Hertfordshire, situated in a gap passing through the Chiltern Hills, which is classed as an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. The area is linked to London by the A41, the railway to Euston Station there is also the Southern Train to Shepherds Bush/Westfields(40 mins). There are many walks from the doorstep including the Grand Union Canal and the famous Ridgeway trail. The former livestock market in Tring, redeveloped in 2005, is now the home of weekly Friday Market and fortnightly Saturday Farmers' Market. Ashridge Estate, part of the National Trust and home to Ashridge Business School, is located just outside Tring. Tring Natural History Museum is also located in the town centre, a legacy from the famous Rothschild Estate. There are many shops in Tring, including some High Street names, and many coffee shops.
