Location

Horton-in-Ribblesdale is a well-known village in the heart of the Yorkshire Dales National Park, popular with walkers and outdoor enthusiasts. It sits beneath the towering peak of Pen-y-ghent, one of the famous Yorkshire Three Peaks, with a wealth of scenic walking and cycling routes starting from the village itself.

The village has a strong community feel, with a traditional pub, café, church, and a railway station on the Settle–Carlisle line, offering direct connections to Leeds and beyond. Nearby Settle provides a full range of amenities, including a Booths supermarket, independent shops, pubs, and eateries.

Primary schools are available in nearby Austwick and Ingleton, while secondary education is provided by the highly regarded Settle College and QES in Kirkby Lonsdale.

With its dramatic landscape and superb access to the Dales, Horton is also within easy reach of the Forest of Bowland, Lake District, and Morecambe Bay, making it a perfect base for exploring the wider region.
