DESCRIPTION

Hankelow House is a substantial two storey detached house, constructed of solid brick under a tiled and slate roof. The house, built to an imposing Georgian design, is believed to date back to the early 19th Century. The interior provides spacious family-sized accommodation with the benefit of oil central heating and double glazed windows.

Outline planning permission (Application No. P07/1717) was granted by Crewe & Nantwich Borough Council on 22nd February 2008 for one detached dwelling. It was extended on 14th April 2012, now lapsed.

Hankelow House is very much a landmark property with tremendous scope, making it an ideal project for private individuals or developers. The overall site extends to about half an acre.
